NEWS PAPER ARCHIVE®

THE SENATORSHIP.

Austin Reveille.

The papers yesterday came with many items about the U. S. Senatorial contest. Some of them had columns devoted to the discussion. The burden of the matter seemed to be who should be the Republican aspirant for the office. It seems to be universally conceded that Senator Fair and his sack would be arranged on the Democratic side, but the Republicans have not apparently been able to settle on any candidate as yet. Judging from the way the papers are discussing the case it must be a red-hot issue in San Francisco and Western Nevada. So far it has not reached out this way to any particular degree, though we all naturally have an interest in the fight.

Eastern Nevada is so far removed from the seat of war that we can only hear the distant rumblings of the conflict as they are hurrying forward their reinforcements and laying plans to make a Waterloo next Fall. Probably it is just as well we do hold this distant view of the skirmish line. Our time will come by and by and we may have the right and privilege of endorsing or rejecting the game put up for us. We can well afford to sit back and be entirely non-committal on this question. In fact we would be foolish to do anything else in the ignored and isolated condition we are in. Knowing that we out this way will form a part of the jury to try the case next Fall we can well afford to quietly sit back and let the leaders and promoters state the case. Then we can judge and act accordingly.

To tie ourselves up now to any particular interest would be nonsense and if it became necessary to change that opinion as the situation became better known it may be awkward and unpleasant. Better stand back, or straddle the fence if you please, and let the many aspirants parade their virtues and talents before you than to tack your faith to him who may now seem to be fairest and best. The next few months will be active ones. We will doubtless have visits from all the candidates. We will meet them all, hear their stories and size them up according to our way of thinking and will then be able to form intelligent opinions. Of course we will all hear much that is false of each of them and the good qualities will be exaggerated, but time will tell much and to time let us trust for a way out of the net they are trying to weave for us.

Counting it settled that Fair is to lead the Democratic hosts the question arises as to who will oppose him. It is very plain his opponent must have money, for the papers all say the sack will be the important feature in the fight. Ex-Senator Stewart, who once held the office, wants it again. He is accredited with being the choice of the railroads and of Mackay. It is also asserted that Sharon was going to give him substantial aid, but he is dead now and this will probably fail. Assuming that Stewart has all this backing he will be able to make a moneyed fight. His opponents claim he is a non-resident and is only building a fine house in Carson to help appearances. They also say he voted for the bill which demonized silver in 1873. He claims this was done unwittingly through a trick put up by gold men and by their misrepresentations. He is the chief candidate now named.

Next comes Hon. Thomas Wren of Eureka, who so far has made no especial stir in the matter, but who we know would esteem it a great honor to be elected Senator. He is a full-fledged citizen during his residence from a period of thirty odd years in the State. Just now he probably would not be able to make, unaided, a moneyed fight, but he has some very "likely" mines which may yield him the necessary laurel in due time. He is a candidate not to be despised.

Then W. S. Hobart, of the wealthy firm of Hobart & Marlette, who own mines and other extensive properties in Western and Southern Nevada, is favorably mentioned. He has many elements of strength. First, plenty money of his own, thus is independent on that score of Mackay, railroad or friends. Then he has no political enemies to punish and could go into the contest free of entanglements than any yet mentioned. He is a clever, genial gentleman and would be a hard man to down. So far he has not expressed a very earnest desire for the office, but it is thought he might be induced to try it.

Our old friend and war-horse, R. M. Daggett, must not be lost sight of. He has not been making much fuss lately, but he believes in a red-hot pick-hand fight at short range and there is plenty of time yet for him to gather his club in hand and wade in where the fray is the thickest. Like all newspaper men R. M. D. has not many ducats laid aside, but he has powerful friends and plenty of brains and energy of his own. In a fair knock-down fight we would lay our all on him. He will very likely be an important factor in the fight and we believe that all calculations on this check-board should put him somewhere near the "king-row."

This is briefly the outlook as it seems from this distance and the readers of the Reveille can weigh the situation and the men as they now appear and by watching the times be able next Fall to do intelligently in the matter.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Hale and Norcross Silver Mining Company, for the election of officers, will take place March 10th, at the office of the company in San Francisco.

Sherman, the fisherman, says he never saw Gibson drink or gamble, and that what he swore to was that he had drunk liquor on the reservation. This was last July.

Geo Becker continues to flourish like a green bay horse in his famous Granite Saloon, and in the presence of the numerous friends and patrons of the institution he smiles like a big sunflower. The boys all like his beer and his other inspiring beverages, also his good cigars and lunch, and enjoy sitting in the comfortable chairs, reading the papers or swapping fresh lies with each other. The Granite is a very popular institution.

THE OVERLAND MONTHLY—ADVANCE NOTES FOR MARCH.—The March issue of the Overland Monthly will be published February 28th, and contains several very important papers about the Chinese on the Pacific Coast. Mr. W. W. Stone will write upon "The Knights of Labor on the Chinese Question." Mr. George Dudley Lawson will discuss "The Tacoma Method." There will also be letters answering Mr. Sheldon's and Mr. Hittell's articles in the February number—one from Mr. Jas A. Phelan, another from Judge Jas. Maguire. Still another contribution on the Chinese problem, will be Mr. Dorsey's "A Prophecy Partly Fulfilled"—an account of the Los Angeles anti-Chinese riot of 1871. Besides the third installment of Helen Lake's brilliant San Francisco serial, there will be a story, "Comrades Only," by Emily Tracy Y. Swett; and "An Heritage of Crime," by Capt. F. K. Upham. A well known army officer will write of "Explorations on the Upper Columbia." The "Lost Journal of a Pioneer" will be concluded; and Wm. Nye writes of "A Winter Among the Piutes." A scientific and descriptive article, which will attract much attention, is from Professor Bradley, of the State University, entitled, "Observations on the Big Trees." Poems from Ira D. Coolbrith and others, timely discussions, reviews, editorials, etc. The Overland Monthly, 120 Sutter street, San Francisco.

GREAT ENTERPRISE.

A Company of Boston Capitalists locate Eighteen Miles of the Bed of the Carson River, Preparing to Dredge and Mine the same for the Precious Metals Lost from the Comstock Workings.

It has long been a well-known fact that many millions of dollars worth of amalgam and quicksilver from the milling of Comstock ore have found their way into Carson river since the first workings of the great lode, and many projects have been devised for reclaiming the same, but none have been put into practical operation. An attempt is now to be made on a very extensive scale, as may be understood from the following, which we clip from Monday's Chronicle.

The Whittier Dredge Bullion Company filed articles of incorporation at the County Clerk's office on Saturday. The incorporators declare their intention of purchasing patents, manufacturing and selling machinery for dredging, mining, milling, hydraulicing, river mining and the reduction of ores. The capital stock of the company is $1,000,000, divided into 100,000 shares of $10 each, term of existence, fifty years. The Trustees are Dr John, H. Rae, A. C. Whittier and F. M. Huffaker.

The principal object of the incorporation is to dredge the bed of the Carson river to the bedrock to raise the quicksilver and amalgam deposited there, and to this end the company have located the bed of the river for a distance of eighteen miles. They will begin the construction of their dredging apparatus immediately. The work of construction will be done on the ground for the benefit of local industry.

THE DREDGING SLOWS

Two scows will be built, each 100 feet long with a breadth of twenty-five to thirty feet. They will be flat-bottomed, with sharp bows and sterns, and will draw from eight to ten inches of water with the dredging machinery and other appliances on board.

THE MACHINERY

Will consist of steam engine connected with a vacuum chamber four feet high and twelve feet in diameter. The vacuum chamber will also be connected with an iron pipe twelve inches in diameter extending to the bottom of the river. The pipe is put together in sections, and joints can be added or taken off at will, according to the length required to reach the bedrock. The nozzle end of the pipe is curved at an angle to allow the suction to draw up the material against the current instead of the mouth of the opening conning squarely in contact with the bed of the river.

THE SLICES

Attached to the boat will be 360 feet in length, overlapping or ranged one above the other, three feet in width and constructed of two inch plank. In the bottom of the slice boxes, at intervals of four feet, wells will be sunk one inch in depth by two inches in width for the reception of quicksilver.

THE RIPPLES

Hungarian rifles of three varieties will be used. In one set the bars cross the bottom of the slices at right angles, another set are placed lengthwise, and the last run across the bottom diagonally. In every fourth rifle there is a gradual rise of six inches in a patent rifle invented by the Doctor. Under the rifles will be placed a layer of Chinese matting, extending the entire length of each slice-box, and on top of that a No. 16 perforated iron plate, with the rough side down. At the head of the slices are three grizzlies, placed one over the other. The first or upper one will have cast-iron bars placed two and a half inches apart, the second or middle one, bars one and a half inches apart, and on the third or lower grizzly the bars will be only one quarter of an inch apart.

THE WATER SUPPLY.

The slices will be supplied with water for washing the material raised by two eight-inch combination pumps of Dr. Rae's patent. These will be used to pump the water required for washing from the river into two large tanks, also attached to the scow. The scow will be rigged with powerful derrick for raising, lowering and changing the direction of the pipe. The slices will receive water from a hose stretched from the tanks, discharging directly under the last or lower grizzly. The engine has a capacity of treating a vacuum equal to 400-horse power, and the suction power is said to be strong enough to draw boulders of 500 pounds' weight into the pipe.

THE DREDGER.

The dredger raises two and one-half tons at each dip of the pipe, and it requires but fifty seconds to create a vacuum, raise the material and discharge it into the receiver at the top of the first grizzly. The suction raises about one ton of water along with the sand and debris from the river bed, which, in addition to the water from the tanks, furnishes an ample slice head for washing. The boulders and coarse rock screened by the grizzly bars is raked off into the river. In fact everything except the amalgam and quicksilver is dropped back again into the stream as fast as it is screened and run through the slices. As stated before, the slices are ranged one above the other, each length being ninety feet. The water washes the material dropped into the head slices from the grizzly until it reaches the end, when it drops down eighteen inches into the second slice, and rolls over polished copper plates charged with electricity, also an invention of Dr. Rae's, and then passes backward through the second box and then drops into the third, traversing in that manner the four tiers of slices, a total length of 360 feet.

All of the most approved appliances for saving gold and quicksilver have been adopted and combined by Dr. Rae, who by his system of rifling creates a series of back or counter currents that would make it impossible for quicksilver or amalgam to escape.

THE INVENTOR OF THE DREDGES.

Dr. Rae has devoted a number of years to practical experiments in saving gold. He now has dredges operating successfully on the Atrato river in New Granada. The present project is backed by Boston capital. Dr. Rae has moved about so quietly and unobtrusively in the matter of locating that he succeeded in securing the entire river bed before anyone was aware of the object in view. Although no enthusiast, he stoutly maintains that he will secure a greater portion of the vast wealth hidden under the shifting sands on the bedrock of the river.

WEALTH IN THE RIVER

Milmon estimate that at least ten percent of the bullion product of the Comstock lode has flowed into the Carson river in the form of tailings. If this estimate is correct, its sluggish waters now roll over a bed literally covered with the precious metals representing a value of $11,000,000. Dr. Rae is confident that by his projected dredging process, slices and electric batteries, he can resurrect and at least two-thirds of this buried treasure to the world. The doctor will superintend personally the construction of his boats and dredges, and will be ready to begin dredging by the 1st of June.

THE INYO MARBLE.

PURE in Quality and Inexhaustible in Quantity.

Israel Luce, the well-known marble cutter and contractor of Sacramento, was in Carson on Friday, direct from the Inyo marble quarries, and returned there on Sunday. The editor of the Carson Index, who interviewed him Saturday, says

He is part owner, with H. M. Yerington and others in the quarries, and as an expert in that article he holds the very highest estimate as to the quality and quantity of the beds which have been located. John Gash, the architect of the Golden Gate Park at San Francisco, accompanied Mr. Luce from the quarries on his way to San Francisco. He has examined the marble and is negotiating for from 800 to 1,000 tons thereof for the projected ornamental of the Park. Should this negotiation result in a bargain it will be a great step toward bringing these marbles into the general market.

Mr. Luce tells us that after a thorough examination of the deposits he is satisfied that he has at Inyo the finest marble beds now known in the world. The quantity is sufficient for the active supply of the world's market for 500 years. The quality is unsurpassed. There are of course different strata and different qualities which can be devoted to various purposes. The ancient Italian quarries of marble for statuary purposes are now so far exhausted that it is impossible to get a block or boulder more than two and a half feet long, eighteen inches wide and a foot thick. The Vermont quarries furnish the only present supply of pure white marble for full-sized statues, but even that marble is white from deadwood, while the Inyo white marble for statuary work is live stone and nevertheless pure white.

The superficial extent of the locations made by the owner, is 120 acres, and the depths of the beds seem, from the outcrop to be fairly minute.

Mr. Luce gave us other interesting particulars, which we will not now stop to repeat. If the publications are one-tenth of what is now in sight those marbles constitute one of the most princely properties. They will ere long be the world's resort for a supply of desirable stone of any required quality or size of blocks.

CARSON STEAM LAUNDRY.—The Carson Steam Laundry has been incorporated with J. Muller, Edmund James, George Hank, J. M. Dorrance and H. S. Mason incorporators. The capital stock is fixed at $2,500, divided into 500 shares of the par value of $5.

THEY MUST LEAVE DAYTON—H. S. Mason and George Gilson spoke to a roasting anti-Chinese meeting in Dayton last Saturday evening. The feeling in Dayton is very strong against the Chinese and the agitation is being well conducted.

The bill to admit Washington Territory may come up in the Senate this week.
